Science Saturday: "Ohio's Early People" to be held at the McKinley Presidential Library & Museum

Canton, Ohio... The next workshop in the popular series Science Saturday will be held at the McKinley Presidential Library & Museum on November 14, with modifications to keep guests safe during the coronavirus pandemic. The theme is "Ohio's Early People." This workshop will be held from 10:00 to 11:00 AM and again from 2:00 to 3:00 PM. It is free with paid admission to the Museum, but capacity is limited.

Ohio is known as "One State- Many Nations," and the state was an important area for native tribes from 1650 to the 1800s. The workshop will look back at the Native Americans that lived in Ohio from the Paleo-Indians to modern day native tribes. There will be informational booths, never before seen artifacts, and make and take crafts, such as totem poles, sand art medallions, and take home dream catcher kits.

This is a one-hour open-house style workshop. Masks must be worn at all times and social distancing at booths will be required to ensure the safety of all of our guests, staff, and volunteers. The booths will be deep cleaned between the morning and afternoon sessions.
